Did you know...

The meaning of the phrase "THREE SHEETS TO THE WIND".

This idiom is nautical in origin, but the specific reference remains somewhat cloudy. Here a "sheet" does not relate to a clothesline nor is it a sail. A sheet is a rope or chain attached to the lower corner of a sail and used to adjust tension.

If the sheets are loosened completely, the sails flap and flutter in the wind and the vessel staggers around like a drunk.

Another explanation suggests that with two or four sheets "to the wind" the ship is in balance; with three, of course, it is not.

It is also believed that sailors would refer to someone who could hardly navigate as being "3 sheets to the wind".

Regardless of its exact origin, the earliest printed record of the expression is in Pierce Egan's "REAL LIFE IN LONDON"(1821). The first specifically nautical example is in Richard Henry Dana's "TWO YEAR BEFORE THE MAST"(1840).

Week two of the new Winter Menu starts on Monday 12th of August.

Please place any orders by Thursday lunchtime.

Bon Appetit!
