Some interesting facts about the Olympic Games....

The first Olympic Games took place in the 8th century B.C. in Olympia, Greece. They were held every four years for twelve centuries. Then in the 4th century A.D, all pagan festivals were banned by Emperor Theodosius 1 and the games were resurrected about 1500 years later, with the first modern Olympics held in 1896 in Greece.

In ancient Greece, athletes competed completely naked and the games lasted 5 or 6 months.

The Olympic torch is lit at the Temple Of Hera in Greece by actresses wearing costumes of Greek priestesses by using a parabolic mirror and sun rays to kindle the torch. The relay torch and the Olympic flame are supposed to burn during the whole of the games. In case the flame goes out, it can only be reignited with a back up flame, which has been lit from the original in Greece.

From 1912-1948 artists participated in the Olympics; Painters, sculptors, architects, writers and musicians competed for medals in their respective fields.

During the 1936 Berlin games, two Japanese pole vaulters tied for second place. Instead of competing again, they cut the silver and bronze medals in half and fused the two different halves together so that each of them had a half silver and half bronze medal.

Australia and Greece are the only two countries to have competed in all games since the modern games recommenced in 1896.
